Petition Deadline Near

Any resident who wishes to have his/her name appear on the June 9 ballot as a candidate for the Romulus Community Schools Board of Education has until 4 p.m. on Monday, April 7, to file candidacy petitions with the Romulus City Clerk's Office, located in City Hall at 11111 South Wayne Road. Call 734-942-7540 for more info.

Carr Review Favorable

The Romulus Board of Education has given Joel R. Carr, the district's superintendent of schools, a favorable evaluation on his duties as chief executive officer of the Romulus Community Schools.

The Board's evaluation covered six different aspects of Carr's job performance, including his relationship with the Board, district employees, and the community, as well as his leadership in the areas of administration, business/finance, and personal professional expertise.

Board spokesmen say that the Board is looking forward to continuing its close working relationship with the superintendent, and note that this cooperative/teamwork approach will be increasingly important as the district addresses future challenges of educational excellence and financial stability.

Book Sale at Library

The Friends of the Romulus Public Library will host a used-book sale at the library (located at 11121 South Wayne Road, next to City Hall) from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. this Monday through Wednesday, April 7–9, and from 12 to 5 p.m. on Saturday, April 12. For more information, call 734-942-7589. □

Councilman Gives Back to the Community

Blue skies and budding tulips are quickly replacing snowdrifts and oppressive gray clouds. Temperatures are rising from brrrr! to balmy. And birds whose songs have been absent from the air for five long, cold months are making their presence known once again. All of these are welcome signs heralding the end of another brutal Michigan winter and the emergence of a long-anticipated spring.

The onset of spring also brings more young bicyclists, skaters, and skateboarders to our neighborhood streets and parks. That's one reason why Romulus City Councilman Charles "Chuck" Miller recently donated 100 new safety helmets to the City's Department of Parks and Recreation.

"After being cooped up all winter, I think folks are anxious to get outside and enjoy the warmer weather," said Miller. "Especially the kids."

Concerned that Romulus youths might be unprepared for a safe bike ride, Miller went to the Meijer store in Belleville and bought the helmets in a variety of children's sizes. The helmets will be distributed, free of charge, to area youngsters attending the "Bicycle Safety Day" program to be held at the Recreation Center (located at 36515 Bibbins in downtown Romulus) on Tuesday, April 29, from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m.

"Councilman Miller is helping to make this spring and summer a lot more fun and a lot safer for some of our kids," said Herb Buckley, director of the Parks and Recreation Department.

"I ran for city council in 2001 to give back in service to the community I love," said Miller. "Donating these helmets to the kids is just one way I plan on keeping my commitment to the community."

Since being elected to the Romulus City Council in November of 2001, Miller has also donated his taxable yearly council salary of $7,900 to other community improvement initiatives. It's a salary that he could certainly find other and more immediate family uses for: Miller, 59, who retired from GM after 35 years, and Anna Lou, his wife of 40 years, have lived on a modest fixed income for the past 7 years.

"One of my goals in donating my time and salary to various community endeavors is to raise the bar for other elected officials," said Miller. "It's easy for some folks to forget why they got into politics. But the true purpose of politics, at least for me, is to make the lives of people better by being a force of positive change for the community."

Mayor Alan R. Lambert (right) thanks Romulus City Councilman Charles Miller for his generous donation of 100 new safety helmets, which will be distributed to local children just in time for spring riding.

Few who have followed Miller's political career doubt the sincerity of his commitment. If he believes he's championing his constituents' cause – as in the case of his continued fight against a waste disposal well proposed for operation in Romulus – he'll take on any opponent, even a federal institution like the Environmental Protection Agency.

City Millage Second Lowest in County

Assessor Julie Albert is pleased to announce that the City of Romulus levies the County's second lowest millage rate.

"Of the 33 cities in Wayne County, only one other jurisdiction levies a lower city millage rate," Albert explained. "This means that the decision-makers in the City of Romulus are exercising sound fiscal judgment and exhibiting strong financial responsibility. While other communities are levying higher millage rates (some two to three times higher) and collecting more tax dollars for their city, Romulus is providing similar city services at a lower millage rate."

The various millage rates levied by Wayne County municipalities are:

Scout Seeks Your Help

To the Romulus community:

Please allow me to introduce myself. My name is Jonathan McLachlan, and I am an Eagle Scout candidate in Romulus, Michigan. As you are probably aware, the rank of Eagle Scout is the highest distinction that can be earned by a Boy Scout. In fact, many prominent people in society were/are Eagle Scouts, including several presidents and astronauts.

One of the things an Eagle Scout candidate must do to fulfill the requirements of the rank is to perform a service project that benefits the community. I have chosen C.S. Mott's Children's Hospital, located at the University of Michigan Medical Center in Ann Arbor, as the "recipient" of my service project.

They are in need of additional (or, in some cases, replacement) "game carts" for the children that are inpatients at the hospital. It seems that no matter how many they have, unfortunately, sick children must wait for an available game to help them pass the time.

I am collecting new or "usable" used video game consoles and the games to go with them. Additionally, small color television monitors are needed to connect the equipment to, as well as the carts to mount them on. The hospital and I have set a goal of 12 units to assist these sick children.

I am asking the people in my community to help me with this service project, which I hope to finish by April 30, 2003. Any assistance that donors wish to provide will be greatly appreciated.

I may be reached at 734-941-3829 to arrange for pickup, or donations may be mailed to me at 16268 Wildfox Court, Romulus, MI 48174.

Thank you,
Jonathan T. McLachlan

Court Staff Undergoes Training

Among those taking part in the court's recent training program were (from left) criminal/traffic supervisors Dawn Springer and JoAnn Brown, Quad-Tran of Michigan vice-president Donna Elliott, probation director Carol Bowman, and court clerk Boots Pond.

The staff of the 34th District Court in Romulus recently underwent an all-day in-house training program. Seminar participants included employees from the civil, criminal/traffic, and probation departments, as well as court administrator Johanna O'Grady-Ward, Chief Judge Tina Brooks Green, Judge Brian A. Oakley, and Judge David M. Parrott.

"It is extremely important to keep our staff highly trained to meet the demands of this busy court," said Green.

Among the training sessions was a seminar on automated case management and electronic case reporting, conducted by Donna Elliott, vice-president of Quad-Tran of Michigan. Al Hindman, director of security and information technology at the court, provided an overview of computer connectivity problems and how to solve them, and staff members also learned proper computer shutdown procedures and system troubleshooting measures, coupled with valuable Internet information on privacy protection. Audiovisual materials from the Michigan Judicial Institute provided information on abstracting from the Secretary of State's office, as well as support personnel training information entitled "I'm Sorry I Can't Give Legal Advice" and "A Commitment to Excellence." □

Court Provides Alternative Opportunity for Youthful Offenders

Staff and students got a firsthand look at juvenile legal procedures when Judge Brian A. Oakley moved his 34th District Courtroom to Romulus High School one day last month for three hearings involving youthful offenders. Oakley used the opportunity to explain an alternative program that allows some juvenile offenders to remain within the local court system on a probationary basis instead of having to go to Detroit for a criminal citation.

"If the offender and his/her family agree to accept and abide by all probationary assignments, juveniles who are issued a citation have the opportunity to work with the 34th District Court instead of the courts downtown," Judge Oakley explained.

According to Oakley, a juvenile taking advantage of the alternative program is issued a civil violation, and must work with the judge and probation officer Steve Williams to satisfy a number of guidelines designed to help him/her become a better citizen.

"The terms of probation often include a review of the child's school report card—with higher grades and better citizenship required—as well as community service, driver's license suspension or denial, and random drug tests in the case of substance-abuse situations," Williams noted.

Failure to complete the terms of probation automatically results in the case reverting to a criminal matter to be adjudicated in Detroit.

Although the juvenile alternative program has been used in Romulus for some time, it's only recently that other communities in the court's jurisdiction—Belleville, Van Buren, Huron, and Sumpster—have come on board.

"We had to get some local ordinances changed to make this program possible, but it has been a definite success with the juveniles and their families," Oakley stated.

Romulus High School principal Dan Hurst was pleased with the success of the school's day-long court session, which gave more than 100 students and staff members a chance to witness juvenile justice in action.

"We wanted the students to see how this program works, how the judge questions offenders, and what the conditions of probation might be," Hurst stated.

During the hearings, Judge Oakley interviewed the offenders, asking them to explain what habits they intend to change, what goals they have set for the future, and why it is important that they not repeat the cited violation. Since the offenders' parents were present, Oakley also talked with them regarding their child's situation and the need for future improvements in his/her conduct and citizenship.

Students who attended the program found it a sobering experience.

"When you see a kid just like you standing in front of a judge, it makes you think," said one. "It makes you realize that bad actions have bad consequences in the real world." □

Senator Basham Introduces Operation Adopt-A-Family

As the nation continues its war with Iraq, State Senator Ray Basham (D-Taylor) introduced Operation Adopt-A-Family to provide information on financial, emotional, and spiritual support to the families of military personnel deployed overseas.

"Having served in the armed forces myself, I know how important it is for those answering their nation's call to know that they and their families have the full support of the American people back home," said Basham. "Operation Adopt-A-Family has been designed to help our military personnel focus on protecting the United States while the State of Michigan focuses on the needs of their families."

Operation Adopt-A-Family will provide help in three ways.

- Local organizations will be enlisted to help families in their search to alleviate hardships directly resulting from the deployment of their spouses or parents.
- Partnerships will be formed between local organizations and public-service groups within communities to maintain an "adoptive" relationship with the families of Michigan's deployed military personnel.
- Support will be generated from the general public and the Legislature to provide funding for the Family Support Network.

"The parents, spouses, sons, and daughters who make up our armed forces are fighting to preserve our democratic way and the principles we hold dear," Basham noted. "Operation Adopt-

Senator Ray Basham

A-Family is just one more way to express our appreciation to our fellow Americans who are prepared to make the ultimate sacrifice for our nation."

Some of the participating organizations include:

- Michigan Sheriffs Association (www.michigansheriff.com)
- Veterans of Foreign Wars (www.bu.mvcc.com/vfwmi)
- Michigan Family Forum (www.fatherhood.com)

Additional information on the Operation Adopt-A-Family program is available through Senator Basham's office. Other organizations that want to participate may contact their state legislator for more information. □

Romulus Mayor's Drug Task Force Seeks Scholarship Applications

The Romulus Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force has established four scholarships, each worth $1,000, to be awarded to individuals continuing their education in a post-secondary or trade school. The money can be used for tuition, fees, books, or materials directly related to course requirements.

Two different types of scholarships will be awarded: two based on community service and two on vocational education recognition.

One measure of a scholarship applicant's merit will be grades that he/she has received in classes directly related to his/her chosen vocation. Overall grade point average will not be a determining factor for the awards. Financial need of the applicants will be considered.

An applicant may be a senior in high school, a student in the alternative educational program, or an adult returning to school or continuing his/her post-secondary studies. The scholarships are awarded yearly for any year that the student is attending a post-secondary institution. An applicant may apply for the upcoming year and additional years of studies. Each applicant will be examined to determine if he/she meets all proper criteria.

Applications for a Task Force scholarship must be submitted to Mayor Alan R. Lambert's office at Romulus City Hall (11111 South Wayne Road, Romulus, MI 48174) no later than April 28 in order to be reviewed by the scholarship committee. Oral interviews will be conducted by the Mayor's Substance Abuse Task Force subcommittee. □

RHS Biology Students Enjoy Hands-on Lesson in Forensics

(From left) Michigan State Police Trooper Christopher Harris, biology teacher Carmen Lawes, and student teacher Joe Lamden organized a mock crime scene in the vacant lot south of Romulus High School to give students like Christopher Kreutzer, Josh Nichols, Amber Treece, Shannon Allen, and Tim Lewis a chance to study forensics firsthand.

If it's true that kids learn best when the subject interests them, then Romulus High School biology teacher Carmen Lawes is sure to have a classroom of experts before long.

Working with Michigan State Police Trooper Christopher Harris and student teacher Joe Lamden, Lawes has prepared a forensics study unit that requires students to investigate a mock crime scene, interview witnesses, and use the scientific method to evaluate their information and solve the mystery.

The crime scene, set up in the vacant lot south of the High School, featured a good deal of evidence for the students to examine. The burned-out shell of a car — complete with the skeleton of the "victim," a Mr. Henry Ford — had a telltale hose dangling from its gas tank, and was surrounded by footprints, bullet casings, and beer bottles, among other clues. After Trooper Harris coached the students on the proper way to approach a crime scene to keep from disturbing or otherwise contaminating the evidence, he showed them how to take fingerprints from the bottles, make plaster casts of the footprints, and use fixed points and triangulation to take accurate measurements.

Needless to say, the unit has students intrigued.

"We all love it!" said Christopher Kreutzer, one of Lawes's students. "Every day, as soon as we get into class, everyone is asking, 'What are we doing today?' It's really exciting."

Kreutzer said that he and his classmates have already made several revisions to their theories about the death of "Henry Ford" as they continue to evaluate the evidence, which includes conflicting testimony from witnesses/suspects like Ford's wife, his best friend, "Steve Viper," and the local bartender.

"There have been so many twists and turns that no one is really sure what happened yet," he explained. "We're trying very hard to be serious and thorough in our investigation, and to sort out the facts from the rumors we've heard and the assumptions we might have made without realizing it."

Lawes — who was careful to work out a study unit that fits the science curriculum guidelines and benchmarks for both the district and the State of Michigan — says she is confident that her students' hard work and dedication, combined with their knowledge of the scientific process, will bring them to "the truth" in the end.

"It's been a pleasure to see how eager they were to get into this project and try some of the forensics techniques that they've seen on television shows," she said. "I know that they're learning a lot, and loving every minute of it." □

Language Arts Department Reports to Board of Education

At its regular meeting of March 10, the Romulus Community Schools Board of Education received an extensive report from the district's language arts department. The presentation featured an explanation of how the department develops reading and comprehension skills among students in grades kindergarten through 12.

Romulus High School principal Dan Hurst, secondary-level strand leader for the language arts department, and Romulus Elementary School principal Lynne Mossoian, the elementary-level strand leader, discussed a number of practices that have been implemented throughout the curriculum. For example, teachers in grades K-3 use a 4-block approach to instruction that helps students learn through:

- guided, content-based reading,
- independent, self-selected reading,
- studying vocabulary, and
- writing essays about their reading assignments.

Julie Forth, a first-grade teacher at Wick Elementary School, had some of her students work with Board of Education members to show off their knowledge of vowel sounds and other phonics skills, while Tavia Redmond, a sixth-grade teacher at Wick, got her students to demonstrate how they cross-tutor one another on vocabulary assignments.

Teachers at the middle- and high-school level explained their use of the Johns Hopkins approach to reading, which involves having students read a "high-interest" age-level book, then review it by writing poems, newspaper articles, persuasive essays, or debate arguments based on what they read.

Secondary teachers – including Teneka Singleton, Monica Lewis, Jamie Nelson, and Keisa Sterling of Romulus High School, and Heather Stanley and Chris Hobson of the Middle School – also made eloquent presentations on some of the books they use in their classrooms. These include:

- A Wrinkle in Time (about meeting challenges) for seventh-graders,
- The Diary of Anne Frank (about the human spirit) for eighth-graders,
- Holes (about crime and punishment) for ninth-graders,
- I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings (about disabilities) for tenth-graders,
- A Raisin in the Sun (about the American dream) for eleventh-graders, and
- The Color of Water: A Black Man's Tribute to His White Mother (about identity) for twelfth-graders.

RHS media specialist Alberta Garrett concluded the presentation with an outline of how the media center helps students achieve their reading goals by providing resources such as paraprofessionals and 58 research computers, as well as activities such as Café Bibliothèque and Kwanzaa celebrations. □

Merriman Enjoys Fifth Annual "Multicultural Celebration"

Among the second-graders who performed the Mexican Hat Dance at Merriman's fifth annual Multicultural Celebration were (from left) Rabia Sheikh, Courtney Thompson, Anthony Wiggins, Savannah Henry, and Dominic Peña.

Merriman principal Shellie Moore welcomed a packed house to the school's fifth annual Multicultural Celebration, held in the school gymnasium. Students from many grade levels exemplified the school motto of "Reaching for the Stars Together" by presenting outstanding performances of music, dance, plays, and poetry throughout the evening.

Among the show's highlights:

- songs and a play from Germany by first-graders from the classrooms of Linda Goulette and Barbara Knight;
- a song, a poem, and a performance of the Mexican Hat Dance by Jeannie Prisco's and Karen Terwilliger's second-graders;
- a Mexican Hat Dance performance by all the first- and second-graders;

- songs from Australia performed by students from Heather Doane's and Jessica Graham's third-graders;
- American square dancing by students from the classes of Karen Fitch and Michele Misiak; and
- a performance of the South African "patta patta dance" and the Ida B. Wells-Barnett play Riding Against Injustice by Yvette Austin's and Eleanor Rhodin's sixth-graders.

After the program, parents and students got to sample international desserts that were brought in by the parents, and to visit the various classrooms to see their cultural displays.

Moore thanked the parents for their overwhelming support of this and other educational programs at Merriman. □

Miller Gives Back to Romulus Community

"Chuck is passionate about doing the right thing for the people of Romulus," said Mayor Alan R. Lambert. "We may not always agree on issues, but at the end of the day, I definitely know two things about him: he cares deeply about the people of this city, and he's a good friend to me."

Miller's family roots reach back to the bucolic hills of Tennessee, but he has called Romulus home since 1946.

"I was two when we moved from Tennessee to Romulus," Miller recalled. "It was my mother, father, and two brothers. I've visited where I was born in Tennessee a number of times and it's a great place. But I always come home to Romulus."

Miller loves Romulus's unique geography and its mix of sprawling rural vistas, rich farmland, and city conveniences. More than anything, he loves the park benches in downtown Romulus. During the summer months, he has been known to take a seat on one of those benches and spend several hours catching up with friends and neighbors in casual conversation or political debates. These "bench talks" offer a vivid sense of community that Miller believes is becoming all but extinct outside Romulus.

"Romulus is a great town, and it has the potential to be an even better place to live and work," said Miller. "I'm trying to do my part to make sure it achieves that potential. I guess that's the example I'd like be for others. Set yourself apart. Give all the way. And do what you say you're going to do." □

Credit Union Representatives Visit Adult Education Students

Julie Ann Lemanski, branch manager of the Public Service Credit Union on Van Born Road, and Rebecca Jones, human resources director for the credit union, recently visited with Romulus Adult Education students at the invitation of teacher Kim Jensen.

Jensen explained that their visit had two purposes: to talk to the students about the credit union itself, and to interview students as prospective employees. Several students were interested in signing up for interviews, and filled out questionnaires brought along by Lemanski and Jones.

Jensen said that the possibility of opening accounts for students from Community High School is also being explored, and Bill Musham, the district's Community Education director, indicated that he is working on an arrangement with the Public Service Credit Union to open accounts for Romulus High School students next year. □

Families Enjoy Reading Night at Wick

Wick Sixth-graders Present Black History Month Program

Sixth-graders from the classrooms of Tavia Redmond and Jennifer Richard joined to present an outstanding program in celebration of Black History Month at Wick Elementary. A large group of guests, including Betty Lenossi, acting president of the Romulus Community Schools Board of Education, and Cheryl Buckley, Board treasurer, were on hand to enjoy the performance, which was given in the school media center.

The program's format involved a set of sketches about key moments in the desegregation movement in America. The sketches featured historical highlights such as the Little Rock Desegregation Order and the bus boycott in Birmingham, Alabama, as well as the 1964 Desegregation Bill, the North Carolina college student lunch-counter sit-ins, and Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.'s "I Have a Dream" speech. A skit on "black pride" was also performed.

Student narrators who informed the audience about the historical context of each event were Tina Carter, Makayla Williams, Byron Paisley, DeAirre Dolsey, Kiarrah Jackson, Joshua Horne, and Jon Swagerty. Class members served as actors and provided the scenery for all the skits.

Principal Debbie Juriga echoed the comments of many of the guests with her closing remarks complimenting the students' "excellent performance," and also commended Redmond and Richard for their patience, expertise, and dedication in making the program a success.

RHS Honors "Students of the Month"

Students attending the brief ceremony in their honor received a certificate of achievement and, thanks to the generosity of local sponsors, a $50 U.S. savings bond.

National "3D" Month

By Taritonye Burutolu

December is designated as National Drunk and Drugged Driving Prevention Month, which is the month during which communities across the United States join with the National 3D Coalition to increase public awareness of the dangers of impaired driving. National statistics show that impaired driving is at its peak during the month of December, which is mostly a result of the Christmas and New Year's holidays.

National 3D Month began as "3D Prevention Week" – a week designated from December 9–15 by President Ronald Reagan in 1982. Since that time, the week has increased to a month, and in 1991, a group of public- and private-sector organizations, collectively known as the National 3D Prevention Month Coalition, made it their goal to significantly reduce the number of each holiday season's impaired-driving crashes. Every December, the 3D Coalition encourages communities, government agencies, law enforcers, and businesses throughout the nation to spread the message about the dangers of impaired driving. The dictionary defines impaired driving as "a reduction in the performance of critical driving tasks due to the effects of alcohol or other drugs." Since statistics show that young male drivers ages 21–34 are involved in the highest number of impaired-driving crashes, the 3D Prevention Month Coalition tries to direct messages to adult male drivers.

3D Prevention Month is a vital observance. Drinking and doing drugs are horrible ways to not only destroy the body, but to destroy loved ones, too. When someone makes the decision to drink or do drugs and drive, that person is also affecting a stranger's life. About five years ago, I had the unfortunate experience of being hit by an intoxicated driver. However, I was fortunate enough to come out of that incident unharmed. Needless to say, I know what a dangerous combination alcohol or drugs and driving can be.

Long-term abuse of alcohol can cause cirrhosis of the liver, which is a disease where scar tissue replaces healthy tissue. This causes the liver, which removes and neutralizes poisons from the blood, to stop working well. This is one of the many effects of alcohol on the body that I learned about last year in Health Occupations I. These are also some of the dangerous effects the National 3D Coalition informs the public of.

For more information about the National Drinking and Drugged Driving observance, go to the Coalition's Web-site: www.3dmonth.org.

Middle School's Wrestling Program Builds to 36 Members

Fans of local wrestling know that Romulus Middle School's wrestling program has a long and proud tradition. Topnotch student spirit and support have played an enormous part in the continued success of the school's outstanding Bulldogs, who often went several consecutive seasons without a loss and usually won their league meet.

Coach Vern Logan, who is also a counselor at the Middle School, was pleased by the large turnout for this year's team and by the outstanding work habits that his wrestlers have shown thus far.

Logan noted that his team really benefited from the additional expertise of assistant coach Nick Smith. Both coaches have enjoyed watching their students learn, develop, and mature.

"Our wrestlers have made a lot of progress throughout this season," said Logan. "My highest praise goes to our only undefeated wrestler, George Wells, as well as to Ben Tuttle, who placed second at our recent league meet, and to Joe Lewis, who finished third.

"Other outstanding team members include Andrew Boyd and Richard Johnson," he added. □

Barth Elementary students (from left) Emily Doyle, Samantha Watson, Alexis Moore, and Emily Lewkowicz pulled their thumbs and forefingers along a string attached to the bottom of a cup in an acoustical experiment that they conducted during the school's recent Science Night program. (All four were able to make a sound like a quacking duck.)
